

Information Security Policy

The policy for the UK & Ireland business

Establishing The UKI Information Security Management System

The UKI Information Security Management System (ISMS) aligns with the global ISMS established by the Dun & Bradstreet executive management and will provide for:

- appropriate protection of information from various internal and external threats;
- authorized access to and appropriate use of data owned by or in the custody of Dun & Bradstreet;
- compliance with provisions of laws, regulations, statutes and agreements concerning information security.

UKI Information Security Objectives - Framework

The UKI Managing Director, in conjunction the UKI management team, will establish information security objectives for the UKI business that:

- ensure the effective operation of the UKI ISMS
- take into account applicable information security requirements and results from risk assessment and risk treatment
- compliment the global information security objectives
- are measurable, documented and updated annually

They will be communicated and should complement the global information security objectives.

Responsibility for Information Security

Our Chief Security Officer has globally overall responsibility for the development, ongoing operations and continual improvement of the Global Information Security Management System. The executive management is committed to the effective operation of our Global ISMS. In the UK the Managing Director has overall accountability for the UKI Information Security Management System. All our employees, contractors and vendors are required to keep information secure by adhering to our IS policies.

The UKI Information Security Commitments

Our UKI ISMS preserves the confidentiality, integrity and availability of information and is supported by the establishment of information security policies, procedures and other documentation aligned to the requirement of the international standard ISO 27001. Additionally, we are committed to continually improve our ISMS and integrate into our business processes and overall management structure.

Additional information

Maintaining the security and privacy of confidential data is one of our highest priorities. For more information: <http://www.dnb.com/about-us/company/our-security.html>
